Wright earns outstanding new CTE teacher award

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

From a shy student, Henry County resident Kristan Shaw Wright has moved to the front of the class at Seneca High School in Jefferson County, after being inspired by her own agriculture teacher.

And only three years into her tenure, Wright earned the title of 2014's Outstanding New Career and Technical Teacher from the Kentucky Association for Career and Technical Education.

Growing up on the family farm outside of Bethlehem, Wright said the first person to instill in her a love and passion for agriculture was her father, a full-time farmer who raised beef cattle, tobacco, hogs, hay and rye straw. She learned about every part of the operation by helping with the farm work.

This gave Wright her first indication she wanted a career in agriculture, and her experiences in David Stahl's ag class during high school made it clear that she wanted to teach.

She could see from Stahl's example the difference that an educator could make in a student's life.

"I went from a shy girl sitting in the back of the room to chapter FFA vice president my senior year," Wright recalled. "I knew that I wanted to make a huge impact in students' lives, just like he did mine."

Wright holds her award from the Kentucky Association for Career and Technical Education.

Wright now serves as an agriculture teacher, Future Farmers of America advisor and career and technical education department chair after taking over the program at Seneca three years ago. Her fellow educators credit her with revitalizing the Jefferson County high school's ag program, according to information from ACTE.

Wright implemented programs like "Animals for Learning," which allowed students to learn leadership, to practice public speaking and to use their knowledge to teach elementary students, ACTE representatives said. The educational association attributed increased enrollment in the program to this and other activities Wright spearheaded.

Stahl taught Wright that every class needs a special event that students will remember for a long time, she said. The Animals for Learning day allowed students to show off and apply what they learned in the ag class.

During Animals for Learning, her students would bring in about 20 animals from Wright's farm and Sunny Acres Farm in Jeffersontown and put them in corrals behind Seneca, she said. The ag students then interact with visiting elementary children and tell them about the farm animals.

"This event has been a huge success because all of my students are not from a farm background and have little exposure to animals," Wright said. "We have three rabbits, two guinea pigs, three gerbils, fifteen chickens and sometimes we even keep a pig in the shop. I have found that the animals in my classroom

Truman pleads guilty in solicit murder case

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

A 69-year-old New Castle woman charged last December with murder solicitation of her ex-husband pleaded guilty Thursday to a lesser charge in Henry County Circuit Court.

Kentucky State Police charged Shirley Truman on Dec. 3 after she met with an undercover officer and provided information to use to find her ex, Donnie Trail, according to information from police.

On Thursday before Judge Karen Conrad, public defender Jessica Schulte informed the court that Truman had reached an agreement with prosecutors on her charge.

The defendant would plead guilty to attempt to solicit murder, Schulte said. While Truman could have faced a sentence of ten years in prison, the plea agreement recommends five years of probation.

Conditions of her probation include having no unlawful contact with the victim, as well as entering a court approved psychiatric treatment program, according to the plea agreement.

BY MELISSA BLANKENSHIP

At a preliminary hearing Monday, Corey Washburn was awarded a medical furlough so he could pursue inpatient treatment for mental health issues.

On Aug. 9 Washburn was charged with first degree robbery when he grabbed a stack of cash from a teller's window at United Citizens Bank in New Castle. A customer detained Washburn until police arrived and took the 21-year-old into custody.

At his hearing, his public defender explained her client had established competency issues.

"He was found incompetent April 18, 2013," said Jessica Schulte. "It was reported that he may be able to regain competency if he received medication, but at this time he is not med

Friday fire damages Eminence home, displaces residents

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

A skillet left on the stove appears to have caused the Friday afternoon fire that heavily damaged a home at 176 Penn Avenue in Eminence, according to Fire Chief Gary Lucas.

A citizen saw lots of smoke rolling out of the second floor and attic area, where fire broke through the roof and notified authorities at about 1:13 p.m.

"I guess it burnt in there undetected for a while until the passerby noticed it," Lucas said.

Eminence Fire and Rescue volunteers responded to the scene and called for assistance from the New Castle, Pleasureville and Lake Jericho fire departments.

A total of about 30 firefighters got the blaze under control and worked at the scene until about 4:41 p.m.

The fire quickly spread from the stove up the walls to the upper floor in the home occupied by Marie, Javier and David Castaneda, according to the chief.

The occupants recovered many items from the first floor, but the house was unlivable due to fire, smoke, water and heat damage.

No one was home at the time of the fire, Lucas said. No one was injured in the incident.

Red Cross workers provided assistance to the residents.

Eminence serves free meals to elementary students

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

All Eminence elementary students can get two nutritious meals for free every day of the 2014-2015 school year, according to educators.

Eminence Board of Education members decided in June to participate in a program that's called the Community Eligibility Provision, introduced as a part of the federal Healthy, Hunger Free Kids Act.

Kentucky served as one of three states to host a pilot program for the Community Eligibility Provision beginning in 2011, according to information from the USDA. The program went nationwide this year.

Feeding America, the national non-profit food assistance program, ranked Kentucky fourth highest in the nation for poverty, 17th highest in the nation for household food insecurity and 28th in the nation for child food insecurity.

The elementary school could participate because the percentage of students receiving help from programs like Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Medicaid and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program topped the required minimum of 40 percent, according to information provided by EIS Food Service Director Jeanetta Gilkison and Superintendent Buddy Berry.

The needed reimbursement numbers worked out to fund the program at Eminence elementary, but not at the middle and high school.

Only the elementary school qualified for the free meals, after figuring the percentage of qualifying students and the USDA's reimbursement rates to EIS.

Gilkison said she would have loved to get the middle and high schools in the program, too, but the numbers weren't there.

"I think that every child deserves a hot meal," said Gilkison about the decision to participate. "I wanted more kids to eat breakfast, for sure. We have a very good lunch crowd, but I think our breakfast could be better."

One benefit of joining CEP is that students who get a healthy meal can concentrate more on their classwork, she added.

The Kentucky Department of Education guidelines recommended that schools have around 50 percent of youth qualifying for meals assistance "for greater financial viability" for CEP, according to information provided by Henry County Schools Superintendent Tim Abrams.

Henry County schools officials approached the Community Eligibility Provision with care, since educators would have to make up the difference for food and staff costs out of their own general fund budget if program expenses go over, said Abrams. "I tend to be very conservative in my spending practices."

Henry County schools will not participate in CEP for that reason as one school was at the "borderline" of the minimum number to qualify, raising questions whether the federal reimbursement would cover the whole CEP cost.

Henry County will continue to watch its numbers and re-evaluate if students qualifying for free lunches should rise, Abrams said.

The numbers for Eminence looked solid, though, Gilkison said.

"We were not going to lose any money, so the school board will not have to fund anything for us," she said. "It's a win-win — we're not losing any money and the kids are gaining. I don't know how anybody could see a downside to this."

CEP pilot sites had seen results because after students ate they were in a better place to learn, said Buddy Berry, EIS superintendent. It made sense for Eminence to join the program as a way of maximizing opportunities for students, a guiding idea in the school system.

"If a kid is hungry, they're not going to be able to focus on higher order level thinking," Berry said.

"Fed children do better on tests," Gilkison said. "They pay more attention in the classroom — a child that is not hungry learns better, they just do."

This helps families make ends meet, too.

"At the open house, I had several parents express how appreciative they were because they are struggling with fees," Gilkison said. "It just helps them out tremendously."

Teaching a new generation of Henry County leaders

Envisioned by Executive Director Pat Wallace, the Henry County Chamber of Commerce Leadership Class has gone through many changes over the years, but at its core, has kept the same mission.

"Development of leadership," Wallace said. "But it has evolved even more into acquainting even natives with Henry County."

As Wallace explained, the class started in 2001 because officials from Eminence, which was undergoing a Main Street revitalization at the time, felt there were too few leaders in the county and wanted to teach those leadership values to young individuals.

From there, it grew into what it is today: an education on the history and culture, past and present in Henry County.

The class goes to a new locale in the county every week and learns about the people behind it, how it works and what purpose it serves.

They also hear from speakers who teach them about the history of Henry County, as well as general lessons on leadership.

Each class also has a class project at the end, in which they find a way to give back to Henry County. One class built a disc golf course at Harry Hill Park, for example.

Another planted trees on a walking trail in the new park. Others have been even more ambitious, such as moving the courthouse clock in New Castle from the tower down to the ground floor and having it repaired and put on display.

One of the current class, Cindy Johnson, has been a Henry County resident for more than two decades, but says she feels she's never really known the county until now.

"It's a wonderful experience," Johnson said. "I've lived here for 25 years and I've learned more in this class than in the other 25 years."

She added that her favorite experience was Government day, where the students met and talked with members of local government and were educated about how small town governments operate. She also doesn't think there's any limitatioin to who can participate.

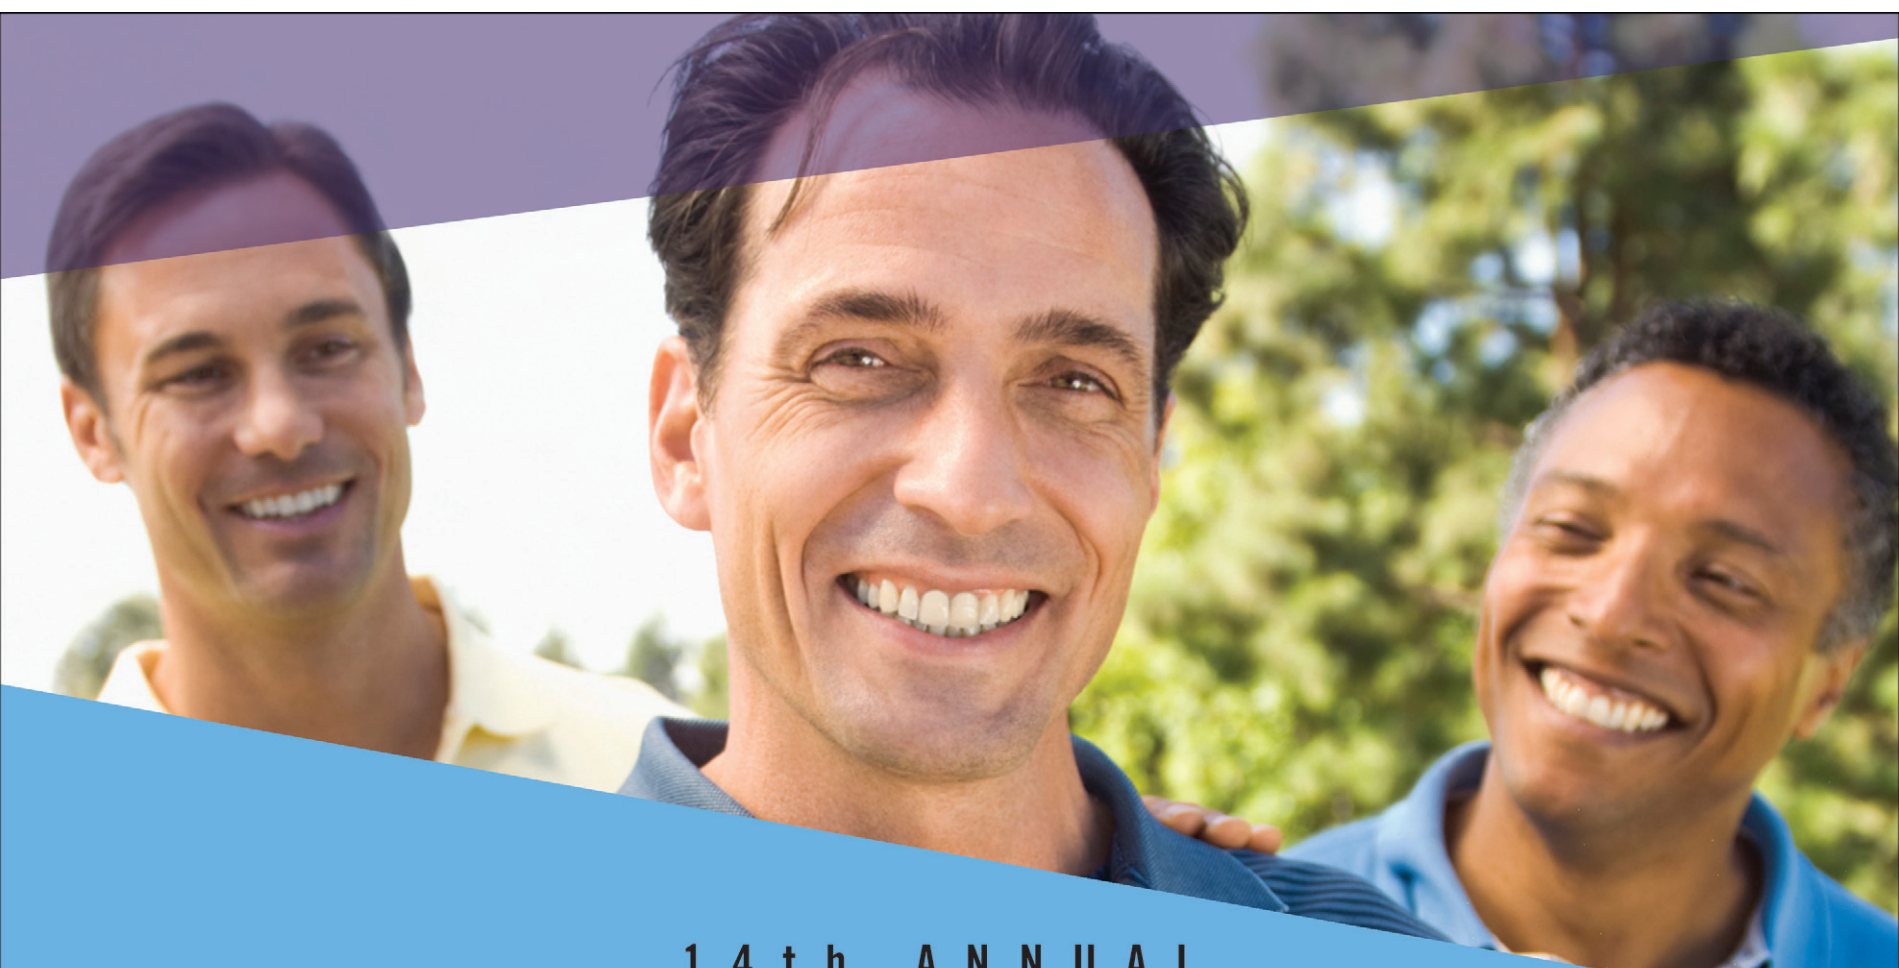

"Every citizen of our community could benefit from this class, given the opportunity." She also praised Wallace's work, saying "Pat has done an amazing job with this."

Happy to collaborate with this team

MELISSA blankenship
Publisher

As a student, I typically despised collaborative projects. Obsessed with getting good grades, I would inevitably end up doing most of the work myself because no one else in the group approached it with the same level of intensity that I did.

I began each collaboration with high hopes, helping to divy up all the workload to group members and establishing deadlines for sections of the project. Invariably, deadlines weren't met, work was shoddy and my streak of straight A's was in jeopardy.

So, I would begrudgingly take up the slack, finishing work others hadn't and re-doing the lackluster work some had submitted. During the extra hours and days of working on the "group" project, resentment built. If the team is only as strong as its weakest member, then I played on some lousy teams.

Working with good people makes all the difference in the world. I am very fortunate to have excellent teammates here at the Local who put in the time and effort needed to do a good job — scratch that — outstanding job. I'm not sure they know how much I appreciate them. Their work ethic and high standards make my job that much easier. They are amazing teammates, and I would sign up to do a book report with them anyday.

How about you? Do you work with great people who do their best work day in and day out? Can you ever thank them enough for all their efforts?

Not everyone has a public format to utilize to say 'Thank you' to their employees, so the Local wants to provide you with an opportunity to do just that.

This coming Labor Day will be the perfect time to express your gratitude to your employees. On Sept. 3, we will print a special edition of the Henry County Local. In that issue, we are reserving space for you to place a special advertisement that acknowledges the efforts of your staff, team, co-workers and work family. We are making these placements affordable for every budget.

For information or to reserve your space in the Sept. 3 special issue, please call or email Barbara (845-2858/advertising@hclocal.com).

Please join us as we show our appreciation to the workforce of Henry County. Author and speaker Brian Tracy said, "A person who feels appreciated will always do more than what is expected." Let's build some good will, show some team spirit, and let people know how invaluable they are to each and every organization in the county.

This is one project on which I'll be happy to collaborate.

Schools' tipline intends to 'STOP' bullying

Henry County Public Schools launched the STOP! Tipline to fight bullying and other risky behaviors at schools, according to educators.

Students, parents and community members can use the free Safety Tipline Online Prevention, provided by the Kentucky Center for School, as a way to report or prevent problems in school.

The designers created the tip line for users to anonymously pass on information about bullying, weapons, drugs or alcohol to school personnel through an email submission.

"Our hope is that, students who fear face-to-face reporting of bullying or other safety issues may be less reluctant to share this vital information when offered an 'online' option," Schools Superintendent Tim Abrams said. "By giving students the ability to report concerns over their tablets, computers or mobile phones, we can reach more students and address problems before they escalate."

Access the tip line by visiting the Henry County Public Schools website at www.henry.kyschools.us and clicking on the STOP Tipline logo.

Tips can be left anonymously or students may choose to have someone contact them. More information can be found about the tip line at www.kycss.org/stop/about.php

"This tip line is just another powerful tool in our arsenal against bullying, harassment and other unsafe behaviors in our schools. Our Comprehensive Safe School Plan is ever evolving to keep our students and staff safe and we are using every resource available to do so," Abrams said.

The Henry County Local will be closed on Monday, Sept. 1, in honor of Labor Day. Early deadlines for advertising and submissions will be Friday, Aug. 29 by noon.

The program innovations and the positive results are factors that the Ky ACTE officials used in giving the award to Wright. "Recipients of this award must have made significant contributions toward innovative, unique and novel programs and have shown a professional commitment early in their careers," according to information from ACTE.

"Just three years ago, the Urban Agri-Science program at Seneca High School was almost removed due to a lack of student interest," said Principal Kim Harbolt. "Ms. Wright breathed life into our agriculture program and within two years, we had to hire another full-time teacher because of the interest she had sparked in our student body."

These teachers continue to bring experiences to students they may never had without the classes, with their hands-on, project-based learning, the principal added.

"Our urban students are exposed to careers and fields of study that were once foreign," Harbolt said. "Suddenly, agriculture and related topics of study are relevant and interesting."

For her part, Wright feels honored by the recognition and plans to continue to develop the ag classes to help ensure her students' success.

The FFA program has grown from four to sixty members in the last three years.

"My goal is that all agriculture students reach a successful career in the agriculture industry, and we continue to allow our students to achieve in all aspects of their life," she said. "My agriculture teacher always said, 'If you're early, you are on time; if you are on time, you are late; and if you are late, you are left.' These are words that I live by today."

ically compliant with treatment. He will likely have further and on-going competency issues."

Washburn's mother, Crystal Washburn Franklin, was in court to speak on her son's behalf. She was prepared to take him to a treatment facility upon his release from jail for a walk-in evaluation.

"My concern is that if I release him to you and you get down there and he doesn't qualify for in-patient then he'll be treated as an out-patient," said District Court Judge Diana Wheeler. "I'm not comfortable with that until he gets back on his medication."

Schulte advised that Washburn was on suicide watch at the jail and she anticipated he would meet the qualifications to be admitted to a facility.

"He's been hospitalized 41 times in the last three years," Washburn's mother told the court. "They've never not admitted him."

Still uncomfortable with the possibility that Washburn would not be admitted for in-patient treatment, Wheeler contacted Our Lady of Peace to arrange an evaluation at the Shelby County Detention Center. Washburn has been a patient at the facility before, according to Franklin.

"We anticipate that they will probably recommend in-patient treatment," Schulte said.

"If you take him and they don't keep him, you have to bring him back to jail," Wheeler advised Washburn's mother. "If they don't accept him or he walks away from treatment, you must return him to the jail."

Another issue to address was a Jefferson County warrant for criminal mischief. Wheeler advised Franklin to pay the bond amount on that charge and inform Jefferson County of her son's situation.

"I am releasing him for purposes of in-patient treatment," Wheeler ruled. "Before I make any other determinations on his bond, I'll need a report on the recommendations of his discharge summary."

Details regarding Washburn's mental health were sealed into his file. The court will re-evaluate Washburn's progress on Sept. 15.

GUILTY

If the court finds that Truman violates any of the conditions, the probation would be revoked in full.

Prosecutors had spoken with the intended victim about the agreement, and that's what he had wanted the court to do, Commonwealth's Attorney Courtney Baxter said.

Truman would be released from custody on Thursday after the hearing, Schulte reported. Truman had been in jail since December.

When the judge asked Truman to describe the circumstances of the case, the defense said that Truman had met with an undercover police officer in Henry County and discussed her plan to harm Trail, but no money changed hands at that time, Schulte said.

While meeting at a gas station in Pendleton, Truman gave the undercover officer written directions to Trail's home and provided a physical description and information about his vehicle, according to police reports.

Police said that Truman did this to "aid and counsel…. Went to the victim's apartment to show where he lives and aid in the planning."

Authorities did not discuss an alleged motive in court, but a filing by prosecutors indicated that Truman and Trail had a continuing issue after their marriage ended.

"She and Mr. Trail had divorced after over 20 years of marriage and were engaged in a custody battle over their grandson, whom they had adopted," prosecutors wrote while arguing against a bond reduction earlier in the case.

Conrad set Truman's sentencing date for Oct. 9.

Henry County Chamber stayed busy over summer

PAT*wallace*
Henry County Chamber of Commerce

The Chamber has had some very nice events this summer, and I want to thank the sponsors, workers and members who helped with the Harvest Showcase breakfast, the Classic Car Show and the Pride of the Counties state fair booth.

Without their help, we could never do these projects, and these volunteers are most appreciated.

We hope you can check out our booth at the state fair.

We thank Henry County Farm Bureau, Fiscal Court, and others who donated to make our booth look great.

Also, I want to thank the sponsors of our Classic Car Show that was held Saturday at Harry Hill Park. Dairy Queen of Eminence, Bluegrass Drugs of Campbellsburg, and Bedford Loan and Deposit Bank were the presenting sponsors; t-shirts were sponsored by McDonald's of Eminence, D.J. sponsor was Torrey Smith Realty, Doug Bates, Broker, and Pyles Body and Paint sponsored the dash plaques.

We thank all who sponsored trophies, contributed cakes to the cake walk, and a really special thank you to our fabulous gate workers who have done this for eight years, Maryellen Garrison and Terri Cummings.

The Chamber has cancelled the Business Expo which had been scheduled for Sept. 13.

This date was chosen in May, and we had no idea so many other events would be taking place on that date.

We know the Arts and Craft Guild will be having their annual show at the fairgrounds 4-H center from 10-4 on that date with lunch provided by Big Tricky's Catering, and they will have their beautiful items for sale. It is not too early for Christmas shopping, and this keeps the money local.

Another event on that date is Pleasureville Day. They will have a full line-up of fun and booths for your enjoyment.

We have been fortunate to have several new businesses join the Chamber recently.

We welcome Cabinets and More, Greg Gephart, 5440 Sunnyside Road, Smithfield who makes beautiful cabinets and furniture. He has over 30 years experience in this field and will do a great job for you. He can be reached at 502-758-5853.

We are also pleased to have Lettleiki Icelandics, LLC join us.

Carrie and Maggie Brandt are the owners of this beautiful sale, boarding, training, teaching and breeding facility on Eminence Pike not far from the Henry Co. line.

They are residents of Henry County, and Carrie is a Leadership Henry Co. graduate who told us she planned to study in Iceland and begin her own business.

It is a beautiful place with great horses and a lovely teacher. If you want to contact them, their number is 502-409-1924.

Our newest member is Women's Total Fitness of Henry County owned by Ruth Bramlage.

Ruth has many years experience not only in fitness but also has a business background that has contributed to the success of this lovely establishment.

Located in the middle of New Castle at 23 East Cross Main, the center is attractive with nice machines, music to get you going, and even keyless entry so customers can use it.

This innovation is recent, and each customer has a four-digit combination so the workout can be done at each person's convenience.

Ladies who are considering improving their health will receive a free workout to determine if this is what they want to do for themselves.

After the first two workouts with staff who will teach the right procedures, the customer can then receive the keyless entry designation.

The fee for better health and energy is $36 a month, and this includes as many times as a person wants to workout. There are also sessions with staff available to help those who might need it.

Ruth has been a resident of Henry County for 19 years, and she and her husband have a son and daughter who are married and live in New York and Louisiana.

She has previously owned Curves in Shelbyville and is happy to be providing an opportunity for Henry County ladies to invest in their health. She has extensive training in exercise and is a certified fitness trainer.

Ruth commented, "You have to use energy to make energy." This is a fun way to get off the couch and become more active.

In 30 minutes, a person can work out, spend about five minutes on the stretch machine, and have more flexibility, better balance, and improve her health. "It is all about health," she commented. If weight loss is a goal or diabetes, depression, balance problems, high blood pressure, osteoporosis, elevated cholesterol, that tired feeling, or you want to get rid of all that medication for these, then you might want to look into Women's Total Fitness.

Customers range from the teens to the 80's, so age is not a consideration, nor is body shape. As long as you are not seriously ill, you can benefit from exercise.

Comfortable clothing, non-skid shoes and a desire to make your life better are all you need. Since this is women only, it is very nonjudgmental, and you can relax and have fun while becoming a much healthier woman.

Ruth said that word of mouth has helped spread the information about her business and she has customers from all over Henry County.

Many times friends come together for a workout, and the high energy music makes it seem like a party for your good health.

New Eminence Bank will hold open house Aug. 20

United Citizens Bank & Trust opened its new branch Aug. 11 at 5364 S. Main St. in Eminence, according to a news release.

Bank officials invites the public to an Aug. 20 open house from 5 to 8 p.m.

Established in 1872, United Citizens, with its roots in Campbellsburg and existing branches in Carrollton, New Castle, Pendleton and Port Royal, recently earned a five-star rating from BauerFinancial, Inc.

This financial analysis shows that United Citizens "is one of the strongest banks in the nation," according to the news release. "What's more, having earned and maintained this top 5-Star rating for 84 consecutive quarters, puts United Citizens Bank & Trust in an even more elect group of 'Sustained Superiority Banks.' Only 8 percent of the nation's banks have earned Bauer's top rating for so long and with such consistency."

The open house will offer refreshments, drawings and giveaways.

A ribbon cutting is scheduled at 5:30 p.m.

Distracted driving affects everybody

UK COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE
University of Kentucky – College of Agriculture

Extension Notes

Family and Consumer Sciences

Maryellen Garrison
Henry County Extension Office

We live in a world with information readily available at our fingertips 24/7.

While this is a great convenience, it can be dangerous if you are behind the wheel.

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, at any given second in the United States, an estimated 660,000 people are driving while using a cell phone or manipulating an electronic device.

In 2012, over 3,000 people died and around 420,000 more were injured in automobile accidents involving a distracted driver.

Distracted driving includes any action that takes your eyes off the road.

While distracted driving includes everything from cell phone use to grooming, texting is considered the most dangerous act by far.

When a person is texting, it requires visual, manual and cognitive attention.

In Kentucky, it is against the law for drivers to text while behind the wheel.

The state has also banned all cell phone use for novice drivers and bus drivers.

Even if you're not responding or composing a text, reading one can be just as dangerous.

It takes the average person five seconds to read a text message.

During that five seconds, if the person is driving 55 miles per hour, they could drive the length of a football field without paying attention to the road and traffic around them.

The best way to prevent distracted driving is not to do it and encourage your family members and friends to limit their cell phone usage while they are driving.

If you are tempted, turn your cell phone off when you get in the driver's seat or put it in a compartment in your vehicle that you can't reach.

If you are a parent of a beginning driver, remind them that if a police officer finds them texting or talking while behind the wheel, it could delay them getting their license or cause their license to be suspended.

Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Damp weather could cause blue mold on tobacco

UK COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE
University of Kentucky – College of Agriculture

Extension Notes

Agriculture and Natural Resources

Steve Moore
Henry County Extension Office

While we certainly appreciated the nice rains from the weekend before last, experienced tobacco farmers had a nagging concern.

Cool, moist weather is when we see quick and damaging outbreaks of the airborne tobacco fungal disease known as blue mold.

Through the summer, Kentucky had no reports of blue mold, but we also didn't have a UK plant pathologist at the time to keep track of things.

However, last week, Dr. Bob Pearce got a report of blue mold in North Central Kentucky.

Based on the lesions, it appears that the infections are about two weeks old.

Since recent weather conditions have continued to be favorable for blue mold development, producers in that region with untopped tobacco are advised to begin treatment immediately if they have not already done so.

Options are Quadris at 6-12 oz./acre or Revus at 8 oz./acre.

Weather patterns will dictate whether we see disease development in our area, but producers should be prepared to treat, or if their crops are at a susceptible stage, going ahead with a preventive treatment might be in order.

At any rate, Henry County tobacco producers are encouraged to scout, and if blue mold lesions are found, report to the Henry County Extension Office so we can alert others.

Since much of the crop has already been topped, the threat is less serious now than it would have been earlier in the season.

FEEDER CALF GRADING SCHOOL

A vast majority of the beef calves born and raised in Henry County are sold as "feeder calves."

These 400 to 600 pound calves are taken to market where they are graded and sold to someone else who will background the calves before the finishing phase, when they are ready for harvest and processing.

In the grading process, calves are typically sorted into like groups, based on frame, finish and muscling.

Some of these graded groups can sell for substantially more or less than other groups, and top producers can usually have a majority of their calves in the highest selling groups. How?

To understand the feeder calf grading process, and learn what type of calf it takes to consistently hit the higher market price, the Extension Service is offering a Feeder Calf Grading School, September 18, at 6:30 p.m., at the Eden Shale Farm near Owenton.

Topics will include: understanding feeder calf grades; what order buyers are looking for in my calves; and what can be done to maximize return in the sale barn?

For more information and to register for the event, please contact the Henry County Extension Office at 845-2811.

hopeless balls and provides vocal leadership on the court. McGuire has a good serve and should be a good passer for the Cats. Junior Devin Belcher gives the Cats another hitter up front to round out the team.

The Henry County Lady Cat soccer team returns an experienced, junior-laden roster. The Lady Cats won their first district title last year with mostly sophomores in the lineup, however, they will have to replace two stalwarts in defense in Jessica Holcomb and Savannah Adams.

Up front the Lady Cats still have junior Rachel Vegh, who has a deadly right foot, and they are adding a promising freshman in Savannah Medley to the attack.

Justice Kirk and Hollie Jameson should provide experience for the defense but others will have to step up to fill the shoes of the departed seniors.

The midfield should be strong with the likes of Izabelle Miller and Micah Lineman returning.

The Lady Cats should be the favorites for a district title again, and the good thing is that Jameson is the only senior. The rest of the team has two full seasons together.

The Wildcat soccer team is also more experienced than it has been in a long time. Gavin Jameson returns to lead the attack and the athletic and versatile Coleton Aneszko will see time in goal and may end up playing in the field at times as well. Jacob Buckley is the straw that stirs the drink in midfield. His tough tackling and good passing make him a pain in the sides of opponents.

Look for junior Airon Hardy to step up and be a big part of the Wildcat attack this year. Hardy has impressed in the preseason.

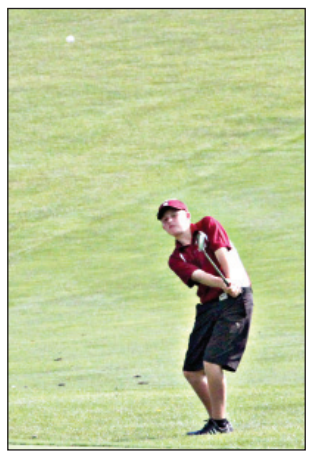

While the Wildcats should be a better team than the district runner up version from last year, they still have to get past an experienced defending champion in Carroll County who return many of their key players from last year.

Both EHS and HCHS cross country teams are a work in progress as the schools struggle to fill out so many rosters for fall sports, but Henry County has a couple of proven runners in Josh Logsden and Brandon Handley. Logsden made it to the state meet last year and Handley has a chance to do so if he continues to show improvement. On the girls' team, Lilly Golden had to shut down early last year with an injury but should be ready to challenge for a spot in state this year. Sydney Amyx has a lot of experience already as a freshman and might find herself in a position to qualify as well. Henry County could field a full girls' team for the first time in a while and might be an outside contender for a team position at state if the newcomers can gel with Amyx, Golden and senior Katie Sutherland.

The Eminence Middle School football team opened the season Thursday with a 20-18 loss at home to Shelby East. Elijah Montero ran for 160 yards and three touchdowns for the Warriors.

On Saturday the Warriors hosted Trimble County and came away 32-12 winners.

Montero had both a kickoff and punt return for touchdowns.

Quarterback Braedin Hinkley also had an improved outing, connecting with Deandre Wright for a 45-yard touchdown pass.

"The week was really a good, competitive week for our program," Coach Ray Ford said. "But we have a long ways to go. I love my team and I am certain we will only get better from this point forward. Fortunately for us, we will have the entire week to heal and prepare for a good Gallatin County team on Saturday."

HCHS BOYS' GOLF

Wildcats start season with loss, win

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County Wildcat boys' golf team got off to a rocky start with a loss at Trimble County on Aug. 12, but came back for a victory over Gallatin County last Thursday.

Trimble County 205 HCHS 206

The Wildcats traveled to Cardinal Hills Golf Course in Bedford for the match of the season and found the hilly course difficult.

The Raiders chose to hold the match on the back nine and the Wildcats had never seen that part of the course and struggled with many blind tee shots.

"The course was rough," Coach Steve Galyon said. "There were a lot of lost balls because the course had not been mowed properly. But this works both ways. They were probably used to playing on a course like that. Our kids are spoiled playing at the Henry County Country Club where it is maintained so well."

Isaac Klempner led the way with a 48 for the Wildcats. Alex Hadden shot a 50 while Dustin Love had a 53. Jakob Beckley rounded out the team scoring with a 55.

"Several of our players didn't play well," Galyon said. "We got off to a bad start there last year, but we actually shot five strokes better this year than last. Wins and losses are secondary to us. The most important thing is getting better every week. If we stay focused and work hard, wins will come when we improve."

HCHS 193 Gallatin 228

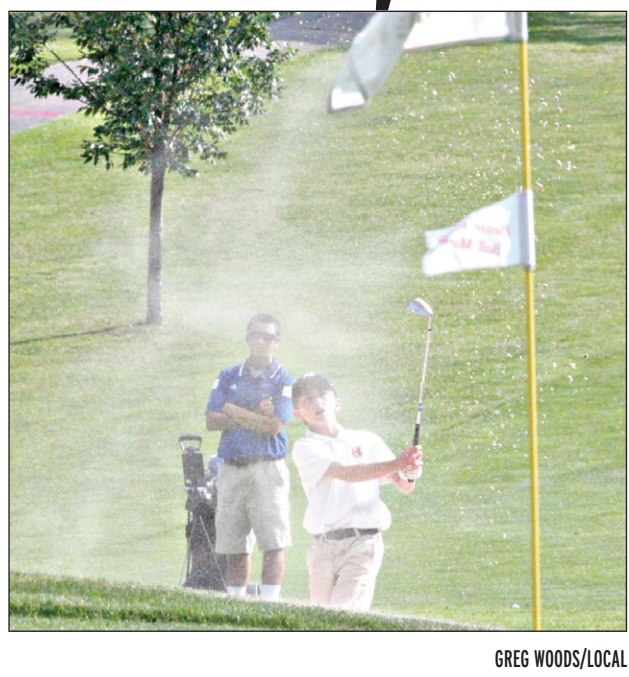

Returning to their home course worked wonders for the Wildcats as they shaved 13 strokes off their score from the Trimble match.

Klempner, a seventh-grader, again led the way with a 44. Hadden, the Cats' other 12-year-old, carded a 45 while Beckley improved by eight strokes to 47. Love had a 57 to round out the team scoring for the Cats in their first win of the year.

"I think our scores were down in this match because the kids took the mistakes they made at Trimble and worked hard on Wednesday to correct them," Galyon said. "We lose many strokes around the green with our chipping and putting. We've worked hard since July on getting that part of our game better, but now that we are playing matches the kids see where their weaknesses are, they are taking practice a litlle more serious.

"We've had some matches changed and

Lady Cats fall to Collins; 6th at Anderson

GREG WOODS/LOCAL

Maddie Hensley, shown here putting on the second hole, won individual honors with a 40 against Collins on Aug. 13. Collins defeated the Lady Cats 198-206.

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County Lady Cats' golf team hosted Collins on Aug. 13 without the services of MacKenzie Peyton, who traveled to Northern Kentucky to play in the Notre Dame Invitational against some of the top players in the Kentucky and Ohio.

The Lady Cats' fell to the Lady Titans 198-206 with eighth-grader Maddie Hensely leading the way with a 40. Hensley was low scorer by five strokes for either team. Mary Borders and Clair Watts led Collins, each shooting 45.

Eighth-grader Nikki Perkinson shot a 50 for the Lady Cats while sophomore Baleigh Boyer had a score of 57. Savannah Smith, another sophomore, playing in her first competitive match shot 59.

Also playing in their first matches but not figuring in the team scoring were sophomore Madison Williams and fifth-grader Carleigh Peyton who both shot 67.

"We had three girls playing in a match for the first time ever and they all did well," Coach Willie Peyton said. "Nikki is showing steady improvement and Bayleigh is working very hard to improve her game."

Meanwhile in Northern Kentucky, MacKenzie Peyton had a rough day, for her, as she shot 78 in the 18-hole tournament to finish sixth overall and fifth among girls from Kentucky.

"The course played tough and Kenzie did not hit her driver well," Coach Peyton said. "A girl from Ohio won the tournament with a 72. Sacred Heart won the team competition."

The Lady Cats had their full squad back together for the Anderson County Invitational at Wild Turkey Trace Golf Course on Saturday and finished in sixth place out of 14 teams with a score of 370 for the 18-hole tourney.

Taylor County won the team competition with a score of 320.

"This was our team's best score of the year," Coach Peyton said.

MacKenzie Peyton shot 74 and finished as runner-up in the 80-person field to Taylor County's Ellen Kehoe who shot 70.

Hensley shot an 84, Perkinson a 98 and Boyer a 114 to round out the Lady Cats' scoring.

FROM THE SIDELINES

And away we go! Fall sports begin

Sports Editor

This week the fall sports season really kicks into gear as all the local teams except cross country have contests scheduled.

Once again I stare at my master schedule for the upcoming season and am filled with a mixture of excitement and wonder.

The excitement comes from the possibilities ahead for our local teams.

The wonder? Well, I just wonder how I'm going cover to it all.

As usual I will depend on coaches to fill me in on away contests while I do my best to be in three places at once some evenings for home competitions.

It's a good problem to have, though, whether you are a high school sports fan or a local sports writer.

Both golf teams at Henry County are already underway with the girls having started all the way back on Aug. 9 at the Shelby County Invitational. The boys had two matches last week.

This week alone I get to cover both volleyball teams and Henry County football as well as more golf.

Unfortunately, my first look at the Wildcat and Lady Cat soccer teams and EHS football will have to wait as those teams play on the road the first two weeks of the season.

As for the golf teams, MacKenzie Peyton might be the story of the season as she looks to win a state title after finishing second last year at Bowling Green Country Club in the KHSAA state championship.

Maddie Hensley, an eighth-grader with a lot of talent, will also be looking to return to the state tournament. The rest of the team is a work in progress. With Peyton as the only senior and Hensley as an "experienced" middle schooler, there is also Nikki Perkinson, another eighth-grader who shows promise and sophomore Bayleigh Boyer, who is working hard in her second year on the team to improve her game.

A pair of youngsters, in seventh-graders Alex Hadden and Isaac Klempner, leads the Wildcats' golf team. Hadden and Klempner have played a lot of golf already this summer on various youth tours and should be the best players on the team.

Jakob Beckley is back for his junior season and has already shown signs of improvement.

Right now it looks like Dustin Love is the Wildcats' fourth golfer and Coach Steve Galyon says that he can hit the ball a long way but must improve his control. Conor Lyons and Connor Finley will fight for the fifth spot and a host of other young players will look to improve and join the varsity as the season goes along.

The Wildcats' football team is touted as one of the best, most experienced Henry County squads in a long time. The Wildcats' roster has 16 seniors and 16 juniors. Many of these players have been getting significant varsity action for two or three years.

The Wildcats will look to open up the attack more this year but I still think the power running game will be their best option with a big front line and strong runners such as Mason Fish and Austin Hartsell.

If they can throw in some offensive flair and continue the strong defense that they displayed last year, it could be a special year for the gridiron Cats.

The Eminence Warriors' football team will have a new look this year… in more ways than one. They will have a new coach in Paul McDowell and a new offense that is more similar to the Wildcats because the Warriors have more bulk up front than they have had in a long time.

The Warriors will have new faces in many positions this year. It will be interesting to see how the new, more ground-oriented attack works for them.

The Warriors' volleyball team lost a lot of important pieces from the team that surprised many by going to the semifinals of the region last year. However they have eight seniors on the roster and Emily Coomes, Renee Toole and Kennedy Fitzgerald all played key roles on the team last year.

The addition of Destany Crawford, who sat out last year after transferring from Henry County, will also help the team. Leah Dale, Scarlett Parsons, Marissa Puckett and Roxana Ramos are the other seniors on the team which means depth should not be a problem.

Toole, Fitzgerald and Coomes should provide the leadership and experience that will give Eminence volleyball a chance for another strong season.

Henry County also has a very experienced team this year. Megan Payton will once again be a force at the net as she has recovered from the knee injury that sidelined her for last basketball season.

Molly Williamson should provide good passing and hustle as always and Paige DeBurger will add her experience to the mix in what should be a good season for the Lady Cats.

Victoria Marcum and Kelsey McGuire are the other seniors on the squad with a lot of experience. Marcum is great at getting to seemingly
